The Louisiana Master Naturalists of Greater Baton Rouge (LMNGBR) program exists to advance awareness, understanding and stewardship of the natural environment by developing a corps of well-informed citizen volunteers dedicated to conservation education and service within their communities. Once certified, Louisiana Master Naturalists of Greater Baton Rouge are expected to volunteer and use their talents and training to educate others and/or support programs that promote and protect Louisiana's natural heritage and resources.

Registration must be received by the deadline listed on the website, www.lmngbr.org/apply by mail and cannot be emailed. Acceptance into the LMNGBR program will be based on your answers in the application below. Your check for $225.00 will be held until you are accepted into the program.

Fill out and submit the application below by standard mail to the address listed on the last page. The course fee must be submitted by check with the application but will be held until you are accepted into the program. COURSE INFORMATION

You will be required to pay a $225.00 course fee, which covers the cost of the course ($200.00) and the first year's dues for LMNGBR ($25.00). We would like everyone to have the opportunity to become a member of our organization and believe that finances should not limit your decision to become a LMNGBR member. If you believe that you have a financial need, please send an email to info@lmngbr.org and apply for our tuition scholarship.

CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS

Acceptance into the Louisiana Master Naturalists of Greater Baton Rouge program is based on your interest and qualifications. Training is limited to 20 individuals per course. Individuals will be accepted based on competitive enrollment.

To earn certification as a Louisiana Master Naturalist of Greater Baton Rouge, participants must satisfactorily complete the course requirements. You must attend 8 of the 10 workshops within two consecutive semesters to graduate not including the orientation and the graduation workshops. You must also complete a final project which can be either an individual or group project. This final project allows students to take their training to the highest level by synthesizing information into an interpretive product using the skills and training they receive in the class. Instructors will help guide you through the process. This will need to be completed by the end of the course.

Other than the Orientation class, which is held in the evening on a workday, all other workshops will be on weekends and will cover the following topics: Arthropods & nocturnal naturalist, amphibians, reptiles, birds, stream ecology, plants, forest ecology, river dynamics, mammals, and natural history. Classes are spread out as much as possible. The 10 workshops will follow orientation and run the season. The dates will be posted on the LMNGBR website as soon as they are finalized.

Workshop locations will vary, usually beginning with a classroom portion and then moving to another location such as a park or conservation area for the outdoor lab portion of the workshop. The arthropods and nocturnal naturalist workshops are held together and include an overnight stay at Allen Acres Bed & Breakfast in Pitkin, Louisiana at no additional charge to you. You are not required to stay the night and may drive to the class each day, if desired.

To maintain certification, the individual must complete 20 hours of volunteer service and 10 hours of continuing education in the field of natural history OR a 30-hour service project annually as approved by LMNGBR. Annual membership dues of $25.00 are also required. The title "Louisiana Master Naturalist" is not to be used for any purposes not expressly approved by LMNGBR.

Please note: The course is constantly being evaluated to ensure the best possible learning experience for you. While we do not anticipate any changes, course content and dates may be modified to achieve that goal; sufficient prior notification will be ensured should changes be necessary.

LMNGBR membership is open to any individual who has successfully completed the LMNGBR training program and maintains the annual requirements.
